All articles published in Dermatology: Practical & Conceptual are done so under the Creative Commons Attribution License 4.0 (<https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/>). Under the CC BY 4.0, you, as author, retain ownership of the copyright of your article and anyone may reuse the article with proper attribution.

As author, you are free to:

Share: Copy and redistribute the material in any medium or format

Adapt: Remix, transform, and build upon the material for any purpose, even commercially

Under the following terms:

Attribution: You must give appropriate credit by citing the original article, make clear the license terms under which the work was published, and indicate if any changes were made to the article. No permission is required from the publisher to reproduce your own work in another publication.

This broad license was developed to facilitate open access to, and free use of, original works of all types. Applying this standard license to your own work will ensure your right to make your work freely and openly available.

Please indicate your agreement to abide by an open-access license. The license permits any user to download, print out, extract, archive, and distribute the article, so long as appropriate credit is given to the authors and source of the work. The license ensures that your article will be as widely available as possible and that your article can be included in any scientific archive.
